

This tab contains overall game information.

Overall game story, a rough idea on the progression.

Skin-Walker is in the skin of a woman – Mari.

Mari is a woman who worked as a show master, transforming people to become the better version of themselves.

In this story, the Player comes onto the show, wanting to participate in a life changing story. Mari, is the upbeat, but also formal show-woman, who is their guide.

To participate, the Player must accept a contract that in case of an accident, lifts 'The New Tomorrow' studio, from any responsibility be it financial or mental.

Over the course of the story, Player converses with Mari as they both head off into the minigames, but there is a plot twist. The show is actually filled not with people, but with monsters!

It becomes a survival show of Mari VS the Player.

Details:

Gradually, over the course of minigames, either Mari or Player, lose sanity. From which the plot-twist of the show audience being monsters emerges. Either the Player's sanity gets low and they finally witness the live audience as clapping, hooting monsters. Or Mari, loses its sanity, de-transforming into their real form – The SkinWalker

The player is a human, they come onto the show to become a better version of themselves.

But ends up having to fight against the witch Skin-Walker.

The player is able to try and deconstruct Mari's image, either verbally knocking off the illusions (skin walkers possess mind control). Or winning in the minigames, earning the special bullets used to shoot a skin-walker :(salt water or holy water , can also shoot the witch with bullets dipped in white ash, but the shot must hit them in the neck or the hand, or a powerful shaman to force skin-waker turn in on itself)

In game creation visual (not yet final):

Player paints themselves

A story is only as good as the villains are.

Here are a few defining characteristics and abilities of skinwalkers:

- Shapeshifting: They can transform into various animals, such as wolves or coyotes. They'll change forms depending on their needs. For example, if they need immense strength, they might become a bear. Skinwalkers assume these roles voluntarily — it's not a curse, like being a werewolf.
- Supernatural speed: They move at incredibly fast speeds.
- Mimicry: They can imitate human voices or animal sounds to deceive others.
- Mind control: They influence or control the thoughts of others.
- Cursing: They can cast harmful spells or curses.
- Physical strength: They have superhuman strength.
- Glowing eyes: According to legend, you can tell if you're in the presence of a skinwalker by their eyes. If you shine a light on one when they're in animal form, their eyes glow bright red. In human form, their eyes seem animal-like.

Detecting a skinwalker is challenging because of their ability to shape-shift and blend in with their surroundings. However, some believe that unusual animal behavior, such as animals acting unnaturally or with glowing eyes, can be a sign of a skinwalker.

They may also move in unnatural or distorted ways, even when in human form. Additionally, skinwalkers may cause feelings of intense fear or unease when they are near. People often associate hearing voices or animal sounds mimicking humans with the presence of a skinwalker.

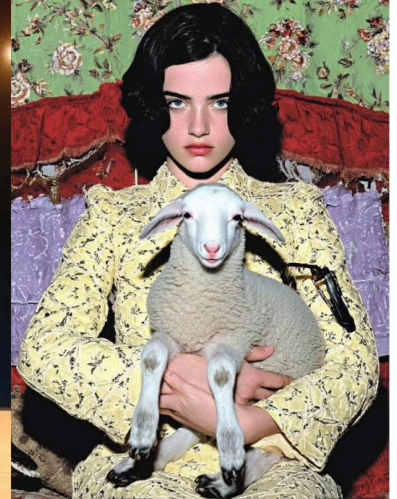

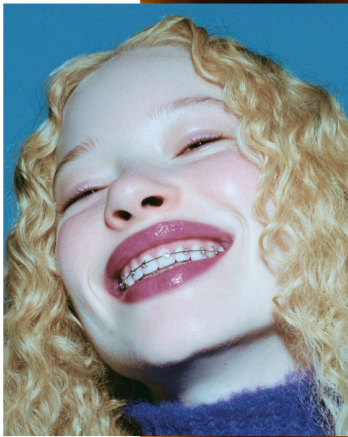

Moodboard

Below

Representing different stages and the vibe of the persona

Generally the Mari figure is a dark haired woman, around 25 years old

MOODBOARD : MARI → START

MOODBOARD : MARI → SANITY LOSS

MOODBOARD : MARI → SKIN-WALKER

Who is Mari?

Why did skin-Walker become one?

Skin walkers are supposedly witches, who knew healing and charms and spells, but turned into malevolent monsters after killing a family member as a part of a ritual.

Mari, being a restrictive persona, who held up strict beliefs, always held herself closed. Yet began noticing the difference in how people treated her and her sister. She liked how free her sister was. And she wanted that freedom. She thought, I am better than her, why is she the one being free? Don't I deserve it too? So she took her place, because then, that's when she began to feel alive. When things become real, heavy, on the line. That's when she is most alive. Having achieved what she craved, she wanted to keep doing it, again and again, chasing that high, the only colour that appears in her life. Because everything else turns boring, only the chase of the game is unknown.

Overall idea

The point of the game is for the Skin-walker to pick apart the player's body to take their appearance and dominate (and self-confirming belief of their betterness) to get rid of the player.

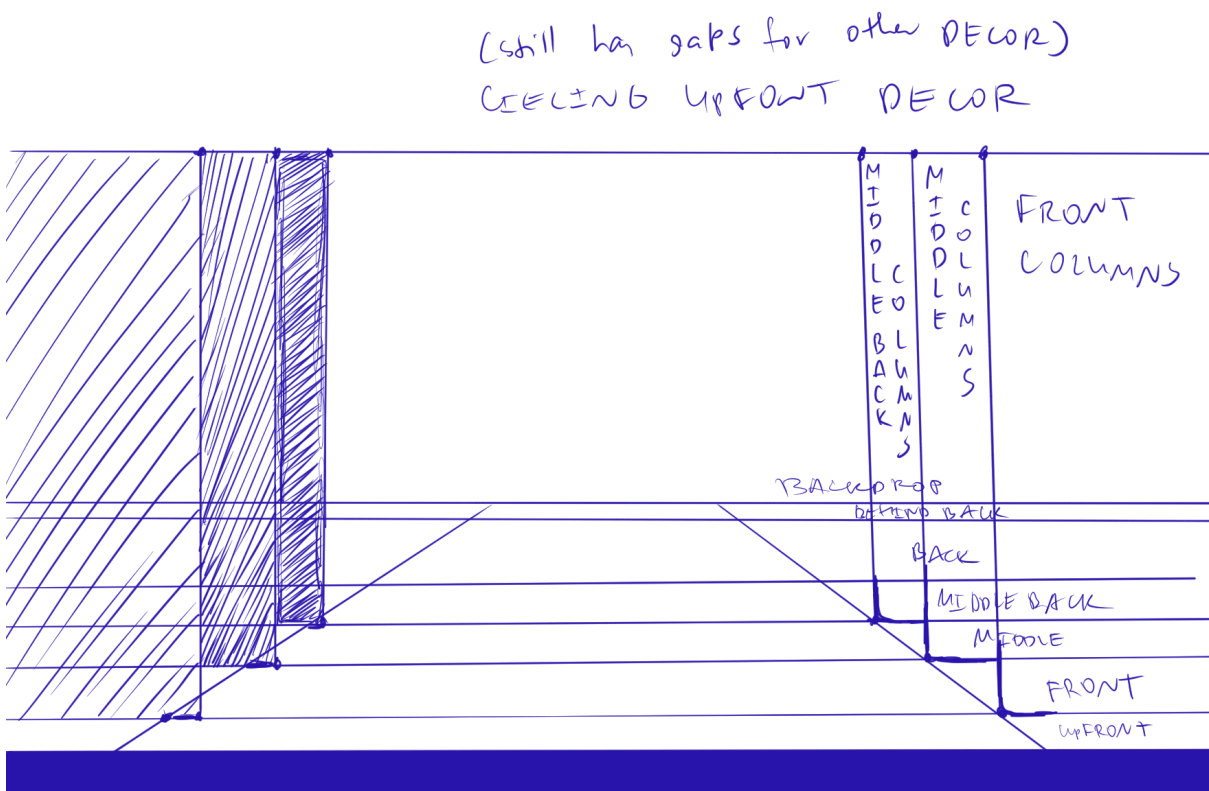

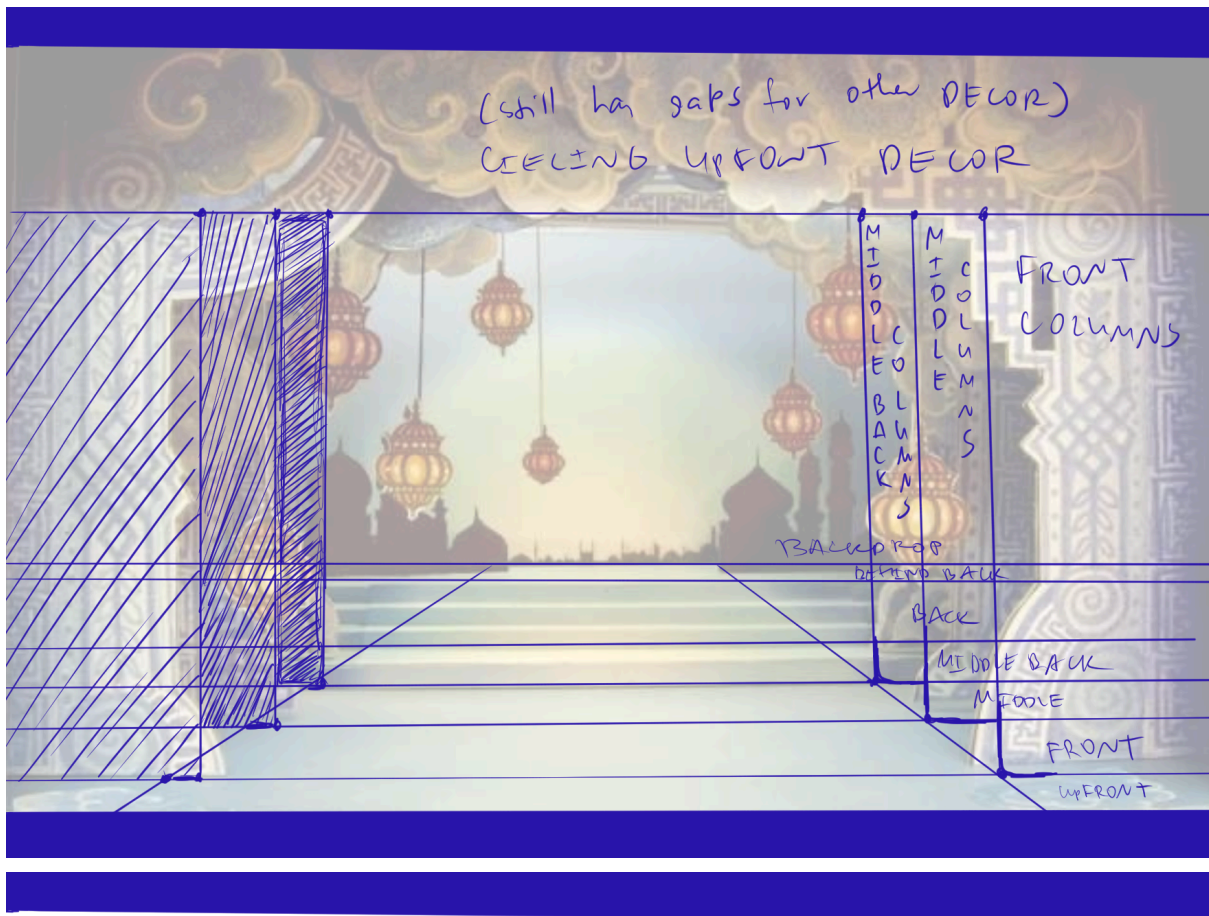

The player must defeat the skin walker after every attempt to take their body piece. such as : right hand was picked -> monster asks, player answers, monster starts a minigame on random. if player wins: player keep the hand, the skin walker loses it;s human appearance for each failed attempt.

if player loses: player loses the body part, if player loses leg, the foot will be gone with it too, giving player some disadvantages in the upcoming mini games.

when the skin walker is fully back into the monster visual. The last minigame will appear as the final boss.

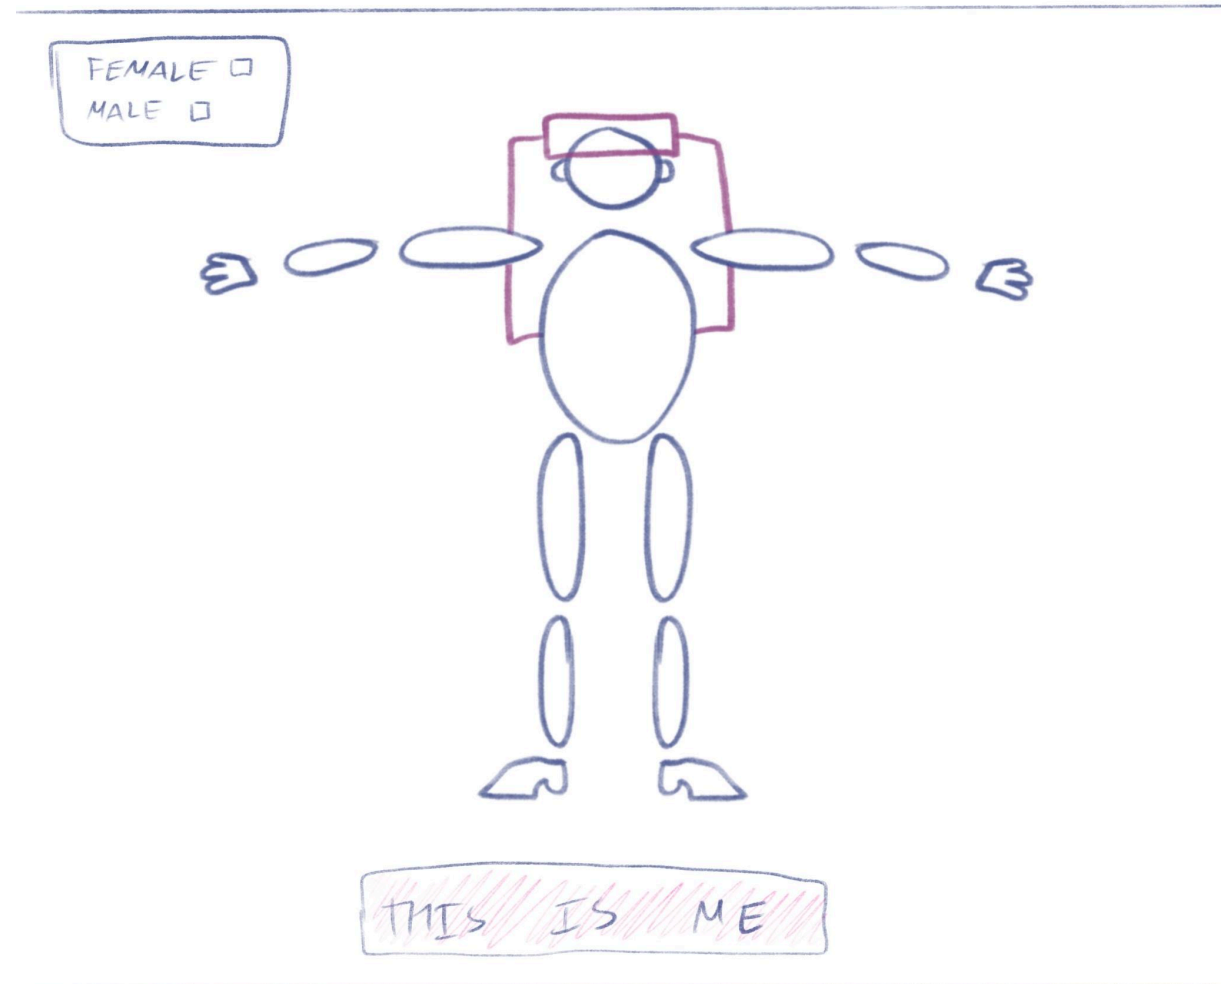

Where the player and skin walker duke it out on who will be victorious.

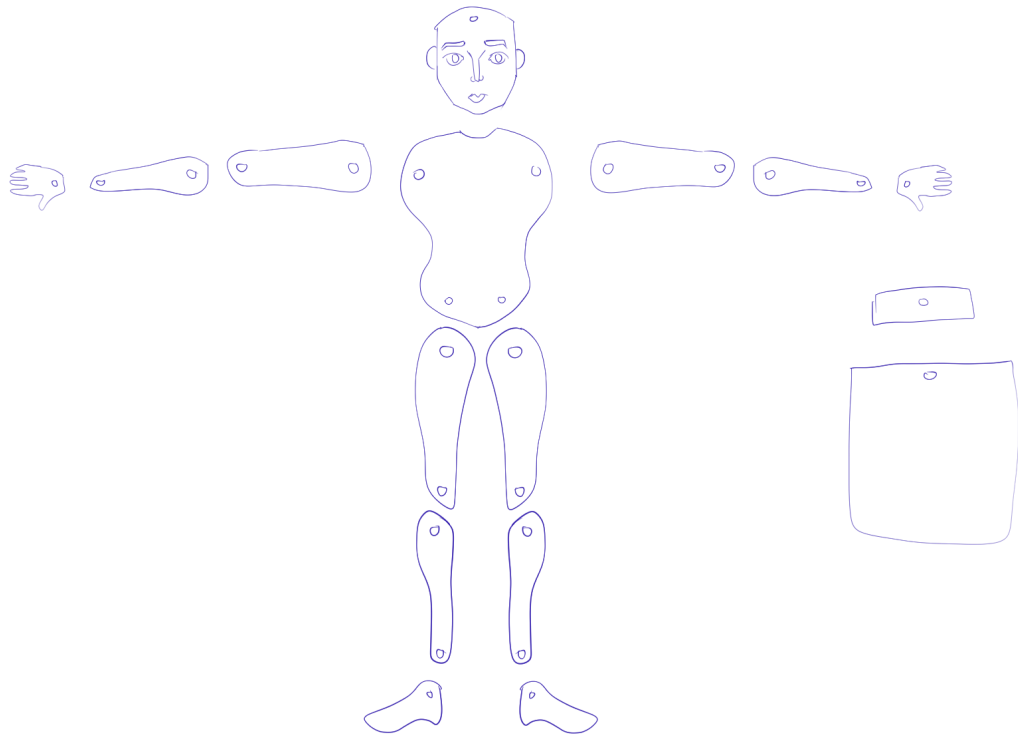

Main game stage static concept:

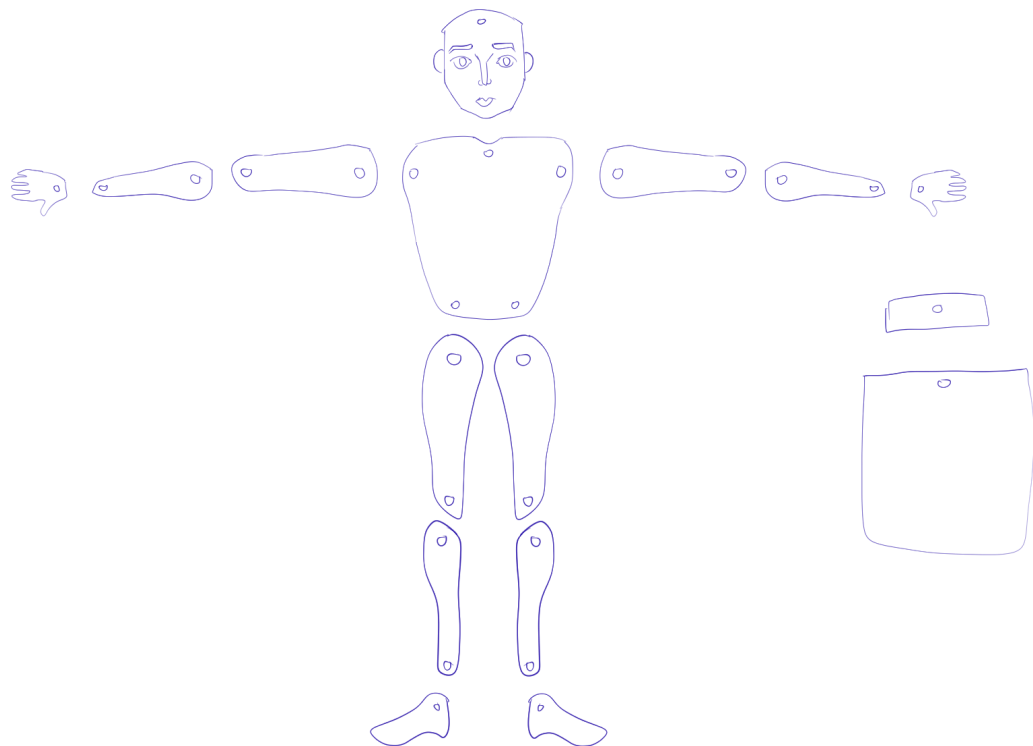

Design - minigame Intro

In game creation visual (not yet final):
Player paints themselves

Female and Male cut-out style design, with front and back hair

Chase - minigame 2

Player must outrun skin waker while pressing correct directional (right-left-jump-crouch) to be able to dodge skin-walker's attacks

Rhythm - minigame 3

Player must

Punch Arena - minigame 4

Hide & Seek - minigame 5

Cards - minigame 6

Singing Voice - minigame 7

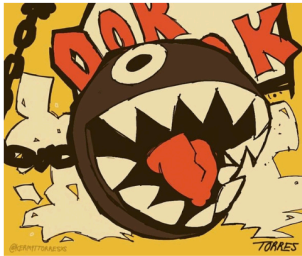

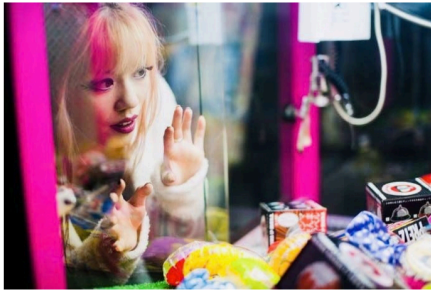

TBD - minigame 8

Moodboard Intro

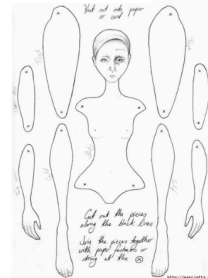

2D

Cutout / cartoon / japanese crane games style / punchy

MOODBOARD : GAMESTYLE

MOODBOARD : GAMESTYLE ELEMNTS : CUTOUT STYLE

What's the theme?

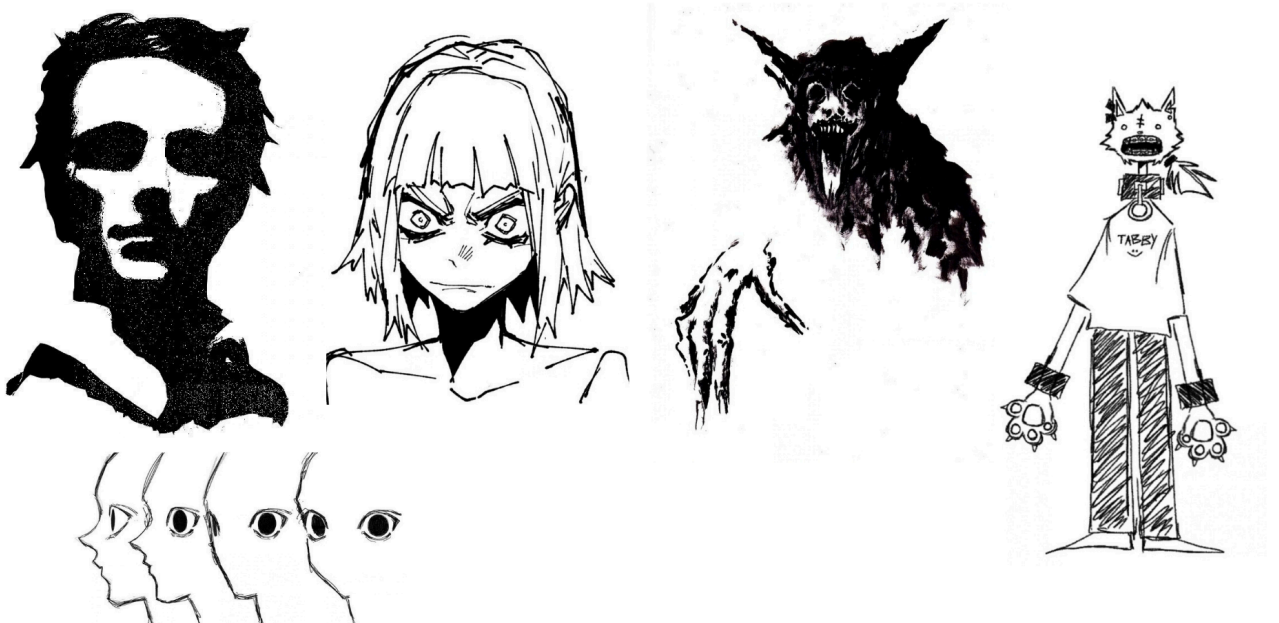

Something snappy, expressive, not old circusy, but has elements of the paper stage play,
The game stage colours can shift depending on the mood of Mari, and the game pace
Grungy, creepy, sketchy, colourful, jumpy, shaky, punk

60/30/20 colour scheme domination

MOODBOARD : WHAT FEELINGS?

MOODBOARD : IMPACT STYLE (INNER CONFLICT, REVELATION)

This tab contains tasks that are planned, ideated, completed.

Sep 30 2026

- ☐ Incorporate the body cutouts for the details minigame to paint a character
- ☐ Create three decisions for bodystyle
 - ☐ Premade woman/man (one click and go action)
 - ☐ Basics for self-drawn (a bit more depth, more personal)
 - ☐ Advanced drawing (deeply personal, creative)
- ☐ Set the game stage with layered parts to create theater interaction

Oct 1 2026

- ☐ Ideate other minigames
 - ☐ Create a sketch of how it will look
- ☐ Character concept design : Mari
 - ☐ Expressions
 - ☐ Attitude range
 - ☐ Colour scheme
 - ☐ Lock in her motive and character development and downfall

date	title	record
05/28/2026	First commits	Dev of card game, implementation of THIEF mechanic
08/02/2026	Creation of the card game logic, based on THIEF, a reverse UNO Instead of fixing a code bug, shifted it into a tug of war mechanic for the cards. Cards + Ai brain functionality	Enhance game mechanics: implement idle nudge feature for monster; add visual feedback for card snatching with vibrate and flashy text effects  KOsaCoCO committed on Aug 2 Enhance AI brain functionality: implement idle-gamble visuals with animations; add flashy text and card movement effects during monster's gambling actions  KOsaCoCO committed on Aug 2 Refactor game audio functionality: replace SoundCloud integration with local audio file support; enhance volume and track management in settings  KOsaCoCO committed on Aug 2 Add game audio functionality: implement audio settings panel and mute button; integrate SoundCloud player  KOsaCoCO

		committedon Aug 2 Enhance game mechanics: improve wheel spin logic and add animation; block input during popups for better user experience  KOsaCoCO committedon Aug 2 Update card info and game rules for clarity; refine game logic regarding pip assignment  KOsaCoCO committedon Aug 2 Refactor monster card reaction logic and update game instructions for clarity  KOsaCoCO committedon Aug 2 special card edit  KOsaCoCO committedon Aug 2 card info + card numeric system fix  KOsaCoCO committedon Aug 2 adding extra gameplay+gamecard action fix
08/27/2026	Re-structure of the card game into a separate dialogue game, cards are archived for future use, or deletion in case of unuse.	Add Address Brain and Word Correction modules: implement direct reply detection and grammar correction for player interactions  KOsaCoCO committedon Aug 27 Add Talking Game

		feature: implement dialogue system with player interaction; create supporting files for word storage and question generation  KOsaCoCO committed on Aug 27
08/28/2026	Conversation engine development	Enhance conversation engine: implement phrase-based intents for feelings and hypotheticals; update learned words display in UI  KOsaCoCO committed on Aug 28 Add initial Monster Content for Mimicry Monster character  KOsaCoCO committed on Aug 28
08/28/2026	Dictionary for Ai	Add Lexicon module and update game state display  KOsaCoCO committed last month
09/05/2026	Re-enter card games for website portfolio	Update README.md  KOsaCoCO authored 3 weeks ago Refactor game mechanics: remove Tug-of-War feature and update related animations; streamline card interactions and enhance game focus on Talking

		Game.
09/25/2026	Read me updates	Update README.md  KOsaCoCO authored 4 days ago Update README.md  KOsaCoCO authored 4 days ago Update README.md  KOsaCoCO authored 4 days ago Update README.md  KOsaCoCO authored 4 days ago
In between	Re-developing game into Outskin the Skinwalker, dialogue and action and minigames. Archiving card and talking game for later use or deletion.	Added later when first stages will be completed
09/28/2026	Read me updates	Update README.md  KOsaCoCO authored 20 hours ago

This tab contains theories that will be included with the process.

Emotional Meaning Behind Every Major Color

The table below summarizes common emotional associations used in animation, gaming, branding, and illustration.

Color	Common Emotional Meaning	Best Used For
Red	Passion, courage, danger, excitement	Heroes, warriors, energetic characters
Blue	Trust, intelligence, calmness, loyalty	Leaders, mentors, protectors
Green	Nature, healing, growth, envy	Forest characters, healers, monsters
Yellow	Optimism, curiosity, energy	Sidekicks, children, cheerful personalities
Orange	Adventure, confidence, enthusiasm	Adventurers, explorers, energetic mascots
Purple	Mystery, wisdom, magic, royalty	Wizards, villains, royalty
Black	Power, sophistication, secrecy	Antiheroes, villains, mysterious figures

White	Purity, hope, peace	Angels, healers, spiritual characters
Gray	Balance, neutrality, maturity	Veterans, robots, realistic characters
Brown	Stability, reliability, warmth	Farmers, guardians, grounded personalities

Rather than assigning one emotion to each color, professional artists consider how multiple colors work together. A predominantly blue character with vibrant orange accents communicates something entirely different from a character dressed in only blue.

One of the simplest yet most effective techniques in color theory in character design is the 60–30–10 rule. Originally popularized in interior and graphic design, this principle has become a valuable framework for building balanced, memorable character palettes.

Rather than using multiple colors with equal importance, the rule establishes a clear visual hierarchy.

- 60% Dominant Color – Defines the character’s identity and occupies most of the visual space.
- 30% Secondary Color – Supports the dominant color while adding contrast and depth.
- 10% Accent Color – Draws attention to important details such as eyes, accessories, logos, magical effects, or weapons.

This ratio creates harmony without making the design feel predictable.

Genocidal Villain - Lich : https://youtu.be/5T_lgerSvB4

Notes - >

Always a very strong reason of why

In Lich's case, he only has one reason, to erase all living things. (this is a good mirror effect because Finn is the opposite of him, other similar villains are Fire Lord from Avatar (utter domination of fire nation and his family lineage), kung fu panda, Po and Lord Shen (wanted to escape his prophecy and defeat Po because of rivalry))

When that is not possible to meet at the current state, he is disengaged. Like a machine. He uses very few words -> gives impact, shows his villainism, his darkness through environment, through possession, through intellect. Making his words mean when they are spoken.

His background is that he is the only remaining scholar of the god of chaos. And his purpose is to please him, but misunderstands the point of his god, living things are chaos, eliminating them turns things into static. Hence why, the god turned Lich into a tetris cube in the end. Ending Lich.

Realistic villain - Frodo : <https://youtu.be/WQFrThLnl2c>

Notes - >

- 1: Realism
- 2: Rigid righteousness
- 3: Disturbing Inner conflict

Strong conviction - intense beliefs that justify their actions as morally right, no matter how evil they are

Frodo believes to be the agent of divine power, he has the power above regular people, and his purpose is to rid France of the heathens.

In the opening Frodo murders the mother of the Hunchback, and is about to throw the child into a well, but is stopped, told it's a sin. And that's the only reason why he doesn't kill the child. But it's hypocritical, because he killed his mother.

That's the part about his morality in believing he is wholly holy and righteous in his actions, and anything that isn't holy, he wouldn't do.

His inner conflict is about lust for Esmeralda, and blames Esmeralda for making him feel like a sinner. Which then, would denote the belief that he isn't holy. And he cannot allow that. He pursues his obsession over Esmeralda, while trying to keep his status as saint, and control over people.

He begs for salvation, but blames Esmeralda for his sins.

Esmeralda helps the hunchback, saving the so-called 'inferior', in this case inferior is portrayal of purity, which conflicts with Frodo's self-righteous beliefs. Where he believes he is doing the good by killing people, and tries to keep the Hunchback in his control, isolating him and mocking him.

Show their hypocrisy:

Villains must be blind to their own flaws while condemning the others.

Frollo's inability to accept his sin, while punishing others for theirs, adds character depth, and makes fall from grace inevitable.

Make them relatable:

Mirrors real world issues

Frollo uses his religion and political power to justify prosecution and control, mirroring historical and modern abuse of authority.

Prejudices, lust, moral superiority, traits often in corrupt leaders - sense of realism.

If a villain lacks personal or social context, it doesn't resonate well with real world issues.

Give them power:

Often hold authority, misuse for ideology game,

Frollo is minister of justice, enforcing his draconian beliefs to oppress Romani people and oppress Quasimodo.

Power is then not just symbolic, it allows action without consequences. - a more dangerous antagonist.

Show their downfall:

Downfall as a result to acknowledge their flaws.

Obsession with Esmeralda - his failure to see evil within himself, leads to his death.

His arc becomes satisfying and tragic.

Avoid exaggeration:

Ground in reality than supernatural elements

Frollo's evilness is impactful, because it's realistic. His Actions driven by his misuse of political and religious power, this has been seen throughout history this makes character more believable.

Use rationalisation:

This villain should constantly justify their actions as being for the greater good.

Frolo believes that every cruel act, burning homes, killing Romani people or persecuting Esmeralda, is justified because he is protecting his society from sin.

Highlights his twisted logic that drives his actions.

Give opportunities for redemption:

Is given the ability to change, but consistently chooses the wrong path.

Such as raising Quasimodo with love or showing mercy to Esmeralda. But he continues to choose cruelty and self-righteousness.

Contrast them with virtuous characters:

Must have contrast to reveal villains' moral failings. Frolo is contrasted with Quasimodo, whose physical deformity belies his inner goodness and Esmeralda who is compassionate and brave. Their purity and moral clarity make Frolo's evil even more apparent. Highlighting his delusion and hypocrisy.